FORDS NEW PLAN TO HELP FARMERS

Would Build Many Factories to Give Farmers Winter Employment At City Wages

DETROIT, April, 27.—Senator Andrew Glaspie yesterday confirmed the statement in the State Senate at Lansing yesterday that Henry Ford is planning to build a factory on every small waterpower site he can obtain in Michigan and give employment during winter at city wages to farmers. Under his plan Ford would have factories operated at full capacity during the winter and release farmers each spring to care for their crops. Ford seeks the enactment of a water power bill which would permit a group of three persons to form a corporation to dam any stream for the purpose of producing and selling power.

SAYS CEMETERY SHOULD BELONG TO STOCK COMPANY

Present Owner Recommends Sale of Private Burying Lots, Hiring Caretaker For Grounds and to Repair Road

OWNERSHIP OF LOTS HERE SEEN AS GOOD INVESTMENT

That the Colson cemetery should be owned by a stock company formed of a number of citizens is the opinion of W. D. Hurst, present owner. This ground, he says, seems destined to be the Middlesboro cemetery and has sufficient burial space to last for seventy-five years.

Sale of private burying plots would result in profitable investments for the stockholders as well as provide a fund sufficient to hire a caretaker for the grounds and to repair the road. The public would take more interest in it if it were owned by a representative number of citizens.

The cemetery is in fairly good condition at present. There are very few weeds, briers and bushes and the grounds are enclosed by a substantial if not attractive fence. The road could be put in first class condition for a comparatively small expenditure and a more desirable fence could be built.

It is thought that a caretaker could be procured for the place at a reasonable figure. A small house on the premises and a few acres of tillable land would be available for his use. The compensation he would receive for digging the graves, an expense which is defrayed by the private plot owners and the use of the house and land would, it is thought, be almost sufficient to induce a man to take the job. The ground could be kept in first class condition and graves could always be dug promptly if there were a regular caretaker for the cemetery.

"I have had the cemetery for several years," said Mr Hurst, "and I am tired of it. I can't afford to repair the road or to hire a keeper for the place. If it were owned by a stock company, however, I am sure that it would be a safe investment paying at least eight per cent interest. After the place is properly fixed up the burial sites will be worth more. In my opinion this is the best plan for providing an adequate burial ground for Middlesboro."

MANY NEW PLAYERS ARE IN STROLLER CAST THIS YEAR

"Lady Windermere's Fan" carries in its cast the names of new Stroller elegibles as well as more experienced stars all of which have been chosen for their respective parts with great discrimination.

Miss Frances Smith, who will be remembered for her charming portrayal of the juvenile lead in "The Thirteenth Chair" last year has been awarded one of the two leads in the play as Lady Windermere.

Miss Eleanor Morse, a senior, who has taken leading parts in the Strollers each year has been given the second lead as Mrs. Erlynne, an adventuress.

Miss Mary Lyons who will ever be remembered for her able interpretation of Rosalie in "The Thirteenth Chair." is taking the part of Lady Plymdale.

Miss Lucile Stillwell, a new Stroller eligible as the Duchess of Berwick, plays a comedy role requiring very skillful handling, which she enacts with great ability.

Miss Virginia Shively as Lady Agatha Carlisle, who is ruled over by her domineering mother, plays her part admirably.

The rest of the cast includes the following: Misses Mary Hansen Peterson, Jeannette Lampert. Mary Stofer, Ida Kenney Risque, Pauline Park, and Messrs. Gardner Bayless, William Finn Gilbert Smith and J .H. Layman.

Seats are now on sale at Lee's.

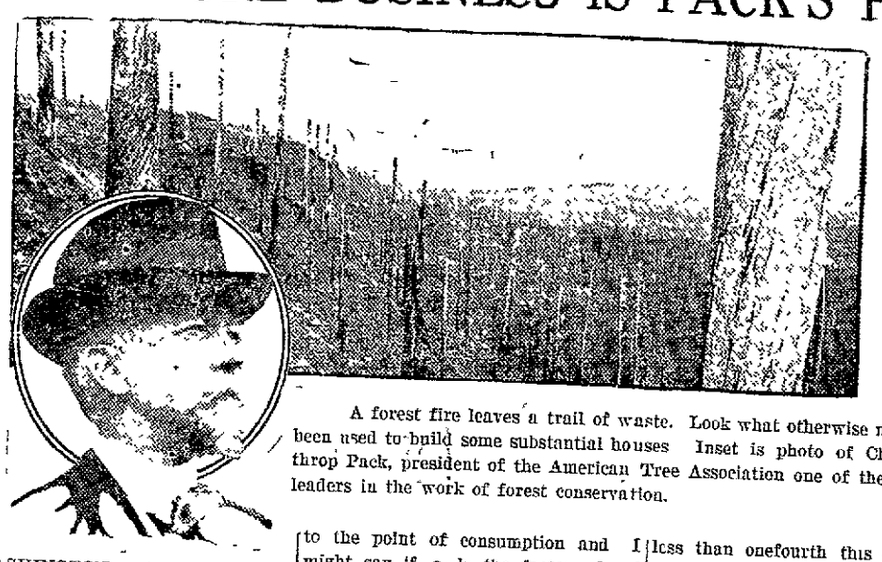
PROTECT FORESTS TO SAVE FUTURE FUTURE BUSINESS IS PACK'S PLEA



A forest fire leaves a trail of waste. Look what otherwise might have been used to build some substantial houses Inset is photo of Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree Association one of the foremost leaders in the work of forest conservation.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 27.—This, Forest Protection Week, is in reality Future Business Insurance Week, says Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree Association, who points out the tremendous importance to the business life of the country of having a steady flow of forest products going to our manufacturing centers.

"And that flow of forest products must originate closer to the centers of manufacturing," adds Pack in a statement on the importance of Forest Protection Week

"Forest Protection Week as proclaimed by President Harding serves to turn the attention of the people to one of the greatest economic problems now facing our country," says Pack. "The week might well be called Future Business Insurance Week for our entire economic life depends upon forest products.

"We Have the Land"

"We must have forest products close to the point of consumption and I might say 'f. o. b. the factory door.' That situation is not impossible for there are eighty one million acres of idle land in this country fit for little else than growing trees. Much of that land is east of the Mississippi river where the bulk of our manufacturing plants are established. That idle land must be put to work growing trees.

"The center of the lumber industry is fast approaching the Pacific Coast. That means long hauls and high freight rates for forest products to keep our factories going. When I say factories I mean everything from automobiles to the making of egg crates.

"New York, New England, Pennsylvania, Michigan, once exporters of lumber, and having enough for their own uses besides, are now importing forest products from distant points. We are using or destroy by fire every year fifty-six billion board feet of timber. The annual growth is at a rate of less than onefourth this consumption and destruction. No private business can continue on that basis and neither can the business of the country as a whole.

Educating the People

"The people are turning to tree planting as never before because of the educational campaigns of the American Tree Association. We are educating the people to the values of trees as a method of preparing theground-work for bigger things

"When the senatorial forestry committee now holding hearings in Washington makes its report we will have millions of people more keenly interested in the subject than ever before. They will be able to better understand the discussion that will follow the committee's report. When the people come to a better understanding of these things we will hear a nation wide demand for increased forest protection and reforestration and not before."

INSTALL CASINGS TO SEPARATE GAS

Rose Hill Oil Wells Being Developed Reveal Gas and Oil of Best Quality

Casings for the separation of the oil and gas from the water are being placed in the well of the Rose Hill Oil company today, according to J. H Walker. Gas was found there Wednesday at a depth of 161 feet. Two barrels of oil, pronounced by experts to be of best quality, have been obtained from the well.

The oil was found at a depth of seventy feet. The drilling continued, however, until gas was struck. Work was stopped because no adequate means of taking care of the gas were available. The quantity of gas present is not known but it came in sufficient force to push the water up in the well almost to the top.

Mr. Walker has hopes of developing the Rose Hill fields which consist of 4000 acres of leased land into a remunerative oil industry. The charter of the company allows a capital stock of fifty thousand dollars. All of the stock will be sold to local investors who may at any time go out and visit the oil fields.

FOR A BETTER MIDDLESBORO

Specific improvements make up the details of a campaign for a BIGGER AND BETTER MIDDLESBORO, and a list is to be compiled of these details, for use from day to day. Today we are advocating:

That a general movement for street improvement be instituted immediately, with emphasis on repair and construction of Cumberland Avenue.

That a system of street marking be devised in this city so that a stranger or for that matter, a resident, can find his way around without undue inquiries.

That the spiritual side may not be neglected in the campaign for a Better Middlesboro, but rather that we should emphasize the importance of building spiritually as paramount to any material improvement.

That Middlesboro's lack of a fitting burial place be remedied and provisions for a cit ycemetery be made.

That every citizen of Middlesboro lend his wholehearted help in the Clean Up, Paint Up, Plant Up Campaign to be launched by the Woman's Club next week.

That steps be taken to provide for an adequate athletic field for Middlesboro.

FINISH CUMBERLAND AVENUE TOMORROW

Clean Up Progressing Satisfactorily—Thirty Loads Hauled Today From Furnace District

Finishing touches will be added to the Cumberland avenue business section tomorrow and this work will mark the close of the clean up campaign.

As free use of garbage wagons has not been authorized except for this week, residents of the business district who wish to have their garbage hauled away at the expense of the city should clean up their premises, put the garbage in piles and notify the city hall.

Thirty loads of refuse were hauled from the furnace district today. Citizens of that neighborhood have given their cooperation in the work, thus facilitating the removal of the rubbish.

Among the places that will be cleaned up tomorrow are the vacant lot opposite the Hotel Cumberland east of the Catron garage building and the premises behind the National Bank building extending to the hospital building.

A much smaller quantity of rubbish was found this year than was found last spring, according to Chief H. E. Ball. The work was done thoroughly last year and it was only the riubbish that had collected since that time that had to be cleaned up.

The work has been done thoroughly in the places visited by the campaign workers. Back alleys, yards and vacant lots have, in most cases, been relieved of their rubbish.

MANY PINEVILLE VISITORS AT CHRISTIAN REVIVAL LAST NIGHT

"The Prodigal Son" sermon was preached to a large congregation at the Christian church revival last night. Evangelist Joel Lee Jones explained the parable and gave it a modern application.

Though chairs had been brought in from the Sunday school department and placed in the auditorium, all these were taken last night. About fifty visitors from Pineville were present and the Oddfellow delegation numbered about twenty.

Rev. Jones addressed the students at the Lincoln Memorial university at 10 o'clock this morning. His sermon subject for tonight is 'Doctrine and Life'. Services will be at the church Saturday night also, the evangelist having chosen "Throwing Stones" for his subject on that night.

IMPETUS GIVEN ELLEN MYERS SCHOOL FUND CAMPAIGN

HARROGATE, Ten, Apr 27.—A considerable impetus was given to the campaign to raise funds for the improvement of the Ellen Myers School in a meeting of the citizens of the community last night in the library building Supt. J W. Baldwin, of Tazewell, made a talk on general school conditions in the county and encouraged the people of the Harrogate district in their efforts to improve their school. An estimate made of the repairs and equipment needed amounted to about $1600 Of the amount, $800 was needed to cover the cost of desks and blackboards. It is the intention of the community to ask the county board of education to appropriate this amount to buy the desks, and the community and the University will give an equal amount for repairing and improving the building. About $275 was pledged before the close of the meeting.

ORGANIZATION OF BAND PLANNED AT MEETING LAST NIGHT

Twenty musicians were present at the meeting which was held in the high school auditorium. Plans for the organization of a band were discussed and it was announced that a director from LaFollette will be here Friday night.

Some of the players who have ordered instruments have not received them and for this reason the organization of the band is being delayed. It is thought, however, that a thirty-five piece band will be ready to perform for any public occasion within a few weeks.

A THOUGHT

Better is a dry morsel and quietness therewith, than an house full of sacrifices with strife.—Prov. 17:1...

Coolness, and absence of heat and haste, indicate fine qualities. A gentleman makes no noise, a lady is serene.—Emerson.

COMMUNITY CHEST NOW ASSURED

Middlesboro takes another stride forward with the adoption of the Community Chest plan to provide funds for the financing of charitable organizations and worthy movements. With a strong civic organization like the Kiwanis club to back the movement and to direct the work there is no doubt that the work will be done thoroughly. With one big annual drive our Salvation army, Red Cross and other worthy institutions will be provided for. Elimination of multitudinous drives which, of recent years, have become little less than a plague to Middlesboro citizens, will be appreciated by all.

The Community Chest plan was unanimously favored at the Kiwanis meeting yesterday as it was a few months ago when the Daily News compiled the opinions of representative business and professional men of the city. Backed up by the civic clubs, the fraternal orders and the liberal and broad-minded citizenry the success of this business and systematic plan is assured.

Haphazard methods of attending to charities will automatically cease with the adoption of the Community Chest system. Organizations will make out expense budgets for the coming year. When the money is collected from the single drive it will be deposited in a bank to the account of the Community Chest. Organizations which are beneficiaries of the fund will be allowed to draw on it to the extent of their budget. A competent treasurer will issue money from the chest only on a valid written order.

The Kiwanis club has rendered a public service in taking the initiative in this worthy movement and it deserves the support of every other civic organization and every citizen.

AN AGE OF EVANGELISM

It is seen all over the world, we have a full share of it in this country, some good, very good, some indifferent, some bad, as bad can be. Of the very good, from a spiritual point of view, that of Billy Sunday takes the lead. He is endeavoring to make men and women good, not through the enactment of human statutes, but through adherence to the laws of that Being who spake as never man hath spoken.

Then there are the evangelists of music, if they may be spoken of as that. There are those who are charmed, or seem to be, with that misnamed "music," but is simply noise, known by the name of "jazz." To offset that there seems to be a revival of the "old songs," which our fathers and mothers used to sing when we were little children, the hearing of which calls sweetly to mind and seems to bring heaven and earth closer together.

There are those who get their names and pictures in the papers through protracted endurance in tripping the "light fantastic," and by proving that if they have nothing in their heads to attract attention, they have it in abundance in their heels.

Besides these, we have some, too many, who are assaying, to save the country, and the world, by preaching the gospel of communism, sovietism, fourierism, and the other isms which are behind the purpose to prevent men and women of guilt in the ownership of their homes. Such specimens of what they might call a species of evangelism, are getting to be too numerous to be mentioned by name.

In the list are included men who have seats in the American congress. For instance the state of Wisconsin which claims to be an American state is represented in the American senate, by one who is openly in favor of abolishing the supreme court. He would give the congress, composed largely if not chiefly of politicians, the power to over-rule and set aside the decisions of the nation's supreme court. Of course, no good and conscientious lawyer would care to hold a seat on the supreme bench, if what may be done may be set aside by an assembly of politicians.

It having been said that the President of the United States proposes to make some speeches to the country, in favor of some policies he believes would be helpful to the country and to the world, this Wisconsin senator, LaFollette by name, proposes to follow after him and to play the role of an evangel of demagogism.—The Journal and Tribune.

Questions

ONE—Can a batsman be removed any time, even if he is a pinch hitter and has had several balls pitched to him?

TWO—Does the umpire ever make a ruling on a play where the runner misses a base unless an appeal is made to him?

THREE—If two are out and a runner on first is hit by a batted ball, which retires the side, does the batsman get credit for a hit?

FOUR—What is the penalty if a batsman changes from one side of the plate to the other while the pitcher is in the act of delivering the ball?

FIVE—When a glove is thrown at a batted ball must it stop the ball to have a penalty inflicted?

Answers

ONE—A batsman can be removed at any time and another player substituted for him. If several balls have been pitched he simply takes the count that existed on the batsman.

TWO—The umpire never makes a ruling on a play in which the runner misses a base unless the play is properly made and the umpire is appealed to for a ruling.

THREE—At all times when a runner is hit by a batted ball and declared out, the batsman receives credit for a hit.

FOUR—The batsman has no such right and is declared out for so doing.

FIVE—All that is necessary for a penalty to be inflicted for throwing a glove at a batted or thrown ball is to have contact with the ball.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

MODERATION

By Berton Braley

Some fellows plead for "just one" of your glances,
Asking to play with you, once in a while;
Others implore for occasional chances
When they may bask in the light of your smile.
That's fair enough, they are modest in pleading.
I'm a bit different, constantly I'm
Making it plain to you—am I succeeding?
All that I'm asking it all of your time!

"Give me a thought, now and then," I say your wooers,
"I can't expect such an awful lot more."
I don't resemble your other pursuers,
Think of me night-times and think of me day-times.
All of my mind with your glamor is fraught;
So in your quiet, your dull or your gay times,
All that I'm asking is all of your thought.

Others may plead for a share of affection.
Asking for only a bit of your heart.
Though it be merely the tiniest section
I want the whole of it, not just a part!
All that I ask for is all of your leisure.
All of your time and your love and —gee whiz.
What I desire is beyond any measure.
All that I ask for is all that there is!

The Tangle

AN INTIMATE STORY OF INNERMOST EMOTIONS REVEALED IN PRIVATE LETTERS
Copyright 1925 - NEA Service Inc.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT (CONTINUED)

Less than a month after marriage, and Jack and I have come to an impasse from which each of us is turning away in a different direction. It is too horrible! Jack's manner of approaching this understanding, as he called it, gives to understand that he thought I was "the woman who did not care." He was particularly obstinate and foolish about it, and we were quarreling over a little old letter with probably nothing important in it from a man friend to him.

If the letter had been from a woman I could see why he might have made such a fuss about it. Why he must take this little silly thing that I had done in opening an envelope addressed to him (I hadn't even read the letter, he snatched it from me before I could do so) as a text for what seemed to me was going to be an interminable sermon on personal liberty, I could not conceive.

I determined to forestall him if I could.

"All right Jack, if this is to be a mutual understanding party, please let me state my case first.

"From what you have just said, and the anger which you have shown at my misunderstanding in regard to what I must consider an unreasonable requirement on your part I must come to the conclusion that even though you disclaim all intention of being a despot you are one."

Jack raised his hand in protest, but I went on. "I will in the future grant your ungraciously implied request that I do not open any letter addressed to you, but I must in turn ask that you do not make a spectacle of me before strangers. In all my life I have never been so mortified as I was this morning when you so furiously snatched that letter out of my hand. Surely you must know what that small clerk behind the desk was thinking. The whole action was one of those very things that the cartoonists grasp so quickly and from which they make the little tragedies of married life seem only ridiculous and laughable episodes."

Jack's lips curled derisively, and then and there I learned that what women call the tragedies of married life and what are the tragedies of married life to men are very different.

Even after this morning's quarrel, I still cannot see why I should be so very particular about letters from Jack's men friends, and I told him so adding that I would be perfectly satisfied to let him read my letters from Beatrice Grimshaw.

Jack snorted. Yes, he fairly snorted in anger. "Wa-wa-wait a minute," he stuttered, "can you not just for a second get away from a concrete and simple action which is comparatively meaningless and look upon the principle behind the thing?"

I don't know why Jack's intimation that it was not possible for me to be reasonable made me so angry, but I was fairly beside myself with rage.

"You will make me think, John Prescott, that there was something in that letter you did not wish me to see."

DIVES

Has Dives died . . . .
Is Lazarus dead . . . .
He drove them from his gate
Wrathful in passion and hate
Scrawny arms and sunken eyes
Crippled . . . weak cries
That plead,
For bread . . .
Crawling, they move away
Thru' the sultry night,
Their grotesque shapes mere shadows
In the gray moon's light,
Until only one is left,
A beggar.

Then Dives,
Commanded his servant,
To drive the cripple from his door
He heeded not the thin high voice
Nor the tattered rags the beggar wore.
The Castle door,
Blown open by the summer wind,
Revel the feasters drunk therein.
Wild laughter. . . .
And a beggar hobbling forth into the night.

II.

When I look at the world today
I see a thousand eyes that say
Has Dives died. . . .
Is Lazarus dead. . . .
Beggars and sufferers still cry
And the world's Dives pass them by,
As Dives did,
The sick go still untended
The beggars go unkeeped
The friendless are not befriended
And the crippled still is whelped.
As they troop by our doors today
Their shapeless forms all seem to say,
Dives is yet alive,
And Lazarus has not died!

—Joseph Foreman Faulconer.

Former Local Boy Distinguishing Himself in The Literary World

Foreman Faulconer of Tulsa, Okla., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Faulconer of this city and member of the graduating class from Middlesboro High school last spring, has recently come into prominence as a writer and has had a number of his articles published. We are printing elsewhere in this issue a poem by him, "Dives" and the following timely piece on "King Tut", clipped from the Tulsa World:

Tut, Tut, Tut, and Poo! Poo!

Editor World: The Tutankhamen vogue has swooped down upon us like another plague out of Egypt, and seems to have settled itself for a long stay. It has certainly worked itself into the American blood. Even the speech itself has begun to have an Egyptian accent and the Tut Tut! exclamation of grandma is becoming popular again.

Soon the rage will burst into the parlor and the fascinating game of chi-chi and mah-jongg will have to abdicate in favor of the sheikish game of Tut-Tong. Even the spirit control of the ouija board will be a shadow from the tribe of Pharoah, instead of the usual little girl with a white rose" in her hand.

Nowadays, you are not considered to be keeping up with the trend of the times unless you have strained your eyes reading the "Mystery of the Mummy Maiden." seen the "Daughter of King Tut" at your favorite theater after sitting through two solos, a travelogue, Pathe news, topics of the day, and a lengthy rendition by the orchestra to see it, and have danced your self weary to the tune of "Tut-ankhamen Moon."

Now there is an excuse for the hootchie-kootchie.

Wonder how long it will be before they unearth some document from Pharaoh's silent tomb, proving conclusively that Tut-Ankh-Amen was the organizer of the original "Lion Tamers' club."

I went to a masquerade ball the other night. It looked more like an oriental tent warming than a dance. The ladies were exact replicas of the drawings of Egyptian slave girls in some volume of ancient history and there were two men that looked more like Tutankhamen than King Tut did himself.

If King Tut hasn't turned over in His grave, it is nobodys fault but his own.

Everybody's got the Tutankhamen craze
Everybody's putting on Tutankhamen ways,
The woman will soon be wearing the Egyptian drape,
The men will all be wearing a Tutankhamen smile,
And walk through the crowded streets in Egyptian rank and file,
Everything non-Tutankhamen will be completely out of style,
So, when you embroider baby's bonnet
Draw an alligator on it,
Instead of Mary and her little lamb.

Wonder how long it will be before the pickaninny freeze" and the eskimo pie will be discarded for the more palatable Tutankhamen tid-bit. No, Lucile, the Nile is not a river, it is something you drink through a straw and costs exactly 15 cents.

Tut's bed has been dug up and photographed. Now, the furniture magnates can rejoice and rake in a few more gold dollars.

Tutankhamen is now the world's most outstanding man. Beside him, Harding, Poincare, Lenine, Sir Oliver Lodge and Bull Montana fall into insignificance.

I don't know what the Sunday rotogravure section would do if it wasn't for King Tut.

It is funny that he didn't leave any heirs. I suppose before long, that some black-haired bright-eyed daughter of the desert is going to pop up and prove her in-lawness to him, and therefore, get an offer from a movie producer that would make John D. Rockefeller's hair—if he had any—stand straight up on his head like they had a college education.

If an Egyptian crystal gazer had told King Tut that 3,000 years hence he would be the most talked-about man in the world ,he would, no doubt, have giggled outright like a school girl asking a jeweler what was the price on that picture of Valentino he had in the window.

Judging from what they are digging up, they must have buried Tut in his house.

Tutankhamen, if he were alive, would say: "Scientists, you made me what I am today. I hope you're satisfied."

TODAY'S RECIPES

FRIED NEW POTATOES

It is quite customary to find the new potatoes, when they appear, very small. The following is a good way to serve them:

Wash and scrape the potatoes, and place in a kettle of boiling water to which a tablespoon of salt has been added for every 12 potatoes. Cook for 10 minutes. Drain thoroughly, and fry in deep fat, or saute in a small amount of fat until brown. It will take two minutes in deep fat, but a longer time in the frying pan. Sprinkle over them chopped parsley just before serving.

MAPLE SUGAR BISCUITS

Sift two cups of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt and four teaspoons of baking powder together. Work three tablespoons of butter, lard or any preferred shortening into the flour, using a knife or the tips of the fingers. Moisten to a soft dough, using just enough milk to make a dough which can be handled. Take onto a floured board and roll to one-fourth inch in thickness. Spread lightly with softened butter and one sup of soft maple sugar. Roll up like a jelly roll, cut into pieces one inch wide, place in a buttered pan and bake 20 minutes in a moderately hot oven.

The bread that is better than cake. Hayne's Sun-Maid Raisin Bread.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

SIFT SODA FIRST

Sift your soda before you put it into your cake unless you dissolve it in hot water.

SALT SETS COLOR

In washing gray, black or dark blue materials, put salt enough to make a strong solution. This will set the color.

WHITE SILK STOCKINGS

Wash your white silk stockings and gloves in water to which ammonia has been added—about a tablespoon to two quarts of water. This will prevent them from becoming yellow.

CLEAN UP HINTS

Harvest paper scraps on the streets.
Pull out unsightly weeds.
Wash the dirt of ages off windows.
Feed stray tin cans to the goats.
Use cosmetics on unpainted buildings
Make a back yard ook like something else.
Brush away brush piles.
If a paling is loose on the fence, nail it on.
Cremate dead leaves.
Try plastic surgery on the trees and get rid of the old limbs.
If the garbage can isn't in dress clothes, put it somewhere and let the collector play hide and seek with it.
Give smoked draperies a refreshing bath.
Make dirt feel cheap.
Don't go back to normalcy at the end of the week.

RELIEF FOR BURNS

Put a little damp soda on your burn and it will relieve the pain.

MAYONNAISE DRESSING

In making mayonnaise dressing stir the beaten eggs into the cold vinegar and when the mixture is boiled the dressing will not curdle. When eggs are added to the hot vinegar this is almost inevitable.

HANDY COOKING AID

This will help you out in the kitchen: Typewrite a table of weights and measures and tack it on the wall over the kitchen table.

SILK FRINGES

Silk fringes finish the skirt of one very smart street frock. Circular flounces are making their appearances on many dance frocks and afternoon gowns seen at the smart restaurants.

Remove stones from dates (any amount desired). Place nut meats (walnut meats are fine, but other will do) in place of stones. Then roll dates in sugar (either granulated or powdered). This is a most healthful and delicious recipe. It is a great sweet-tooth satisfier. A seeded raisin combined with the nut meat is delicious and nutritious.
